THE WORLD'S EARLIEST CITIES

AN INTRODUCTION

First of a series of books about cities in the world from their beginning down to the present. Both descriptive and analytical, this history of cities from earliest times to c50 B.C.E. sees cities in geographical, geopolitical and cultural contexts. It is abundantly illustrated with maps, city plans and pictures and has an additional reading list for each chapter. Contains tables of dates and city sizes in different eras covering the whole world. Useful for non-specialists and could be used as a textbook in university classes.
